Other Library News.....

A recent Star Telegram headline shocked with these words: "City seeks feedback on selling some property, including public library." They were referring to the central branch which holds all the genealogy collection of FW Library. The main gist is that they want public feedback and we genealogists are going to have to do just that--SPEAK UP and SPEAK OUT!! They need to know how much it means to be able to access the books, the rare books, the archival material, the city directories, microfilm, the equipment and scanners, the meetings, the classes, and so much more for genealogists. Please read this article and stay apprised. Write emails and letters. Speak at meetings. They must hear our feedback.

JULY FWGS Meeting

Lora Pallatto brought our program in July. Her talk was entitled "Follow the Money" and dealt with looking for records that our ancestors may have left on their financial dealings and status. If you would like her notes and materials that she presented that evening, you may email Debbie Pearson, the Program Director at:

From the Editor

Ole' Summer Sun is trying his best to bake us on these last days of summer. Hope your summer included a trip out of town! August brought to FWGS our annual Summer Seminar. It was very well attended and well received. There were around 115 at Ridglea Country Club to hear Debbie Duay. As promised, she really knows the territory in finding ancestors who may have served in the Revolutionary War and families that were in the colonies in this time period. She gave us so many places to look and her web site is fantastically linked to go between these resources seamlessly. Debbie really has a heart to help others learn.

BACK TO SCHOOL TIME

This is a friendly reminder.

Schools are starting at many different times in Texas.

Some begin in early August and some still start after Labor Day. It takes a reminder to remember to watch for those darting children into our streets. And do you remember? It is state law to STOP for a school bus who displays the Red Stop Sign extending from the bus. Even if the bus does not display the sign, but has flashing red lights, Stop! Children may cross streets from in front of the bus, out of your sight line. These are our future genealogists out there. Watch Out!

SCHOOL CENSUSES

And speaking of Back to School.

Have you ever checked for School Censuses in a county your people lived in? School censuses were usually conducted on a State or County level and therefore stored in the courthouse. I was in a court house once and happened to look down on a shelf and saw them. I started perusing through and found my grandparents with my dad and his brothers and sisters. It had their ages, their grades and which school they attended as well as their parents' name and where they lived! Of course, I already knew this family well. But it still helps to document your family. And if this was a family I was just beginning to research, this would be great information! You might track a child who had died young with no death info. You might prove the order of birth of children, and thereby formulate birthdates. One of our FWGS members used a school record to prove her mother's birth & age. Her mother didn't have a birth certificate, but she had needed proof to enter school and the school kept a record of it. You never know what will be the key to unlock that door!
